COUNTY ATTORNEY SENDS WARNING TO THE ROAD HOUSES

Resort Keepers Promised Prison Sentences on Evidence of Violation of Laws

STATUTES LIBERALLY QUOTED
Illegal Sale of Liquor and Frequenting by Women and Girls Not Permitted

SEVERE PENALTIES PROVIDED

Ultimatum Closes with the Statement, "A Word to the Wise Is Sufficient"

"If there are at the present time any women stopping at your place other than those used necessarily in and for your domestic work, it will be necessary for them to seek other quarters."

"If this notice is not sufficient, and it becomes necessary to prosecute, then it is equally clear that a time will not produce the desired result and I will therefore bend my energies to procure in each instance a prison sentence."

This was the ultimatum which was delivered to the owners and keepers of the road houses of La Crosse county by District Attorney D. S. Law today. The notice, which was taken out and delivered to the road house proprietors in person by members of the police department, is a voluminous statement of the situation and the attitude of the district attorney in the campaign against the alleged road resorts which was endorsed by the county board at its last meeting. The ultimatum contains a brief quotation of the laws relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly to minors and the penalties for their violation. It clearly and definitely sets forth the district attorney's uncompromising purpose to push prosecution in the event his warning is not heeded and closes with the suggestion that "a word to the wise is sufficient."

About a dozen copies of the ultimatum were sent to roadhouse keepers in the county. One of them is quoted as follows:

"To Whom It May Concern: As you are doubtless aware, the roadhouses in the vicinity of this city have, by reason of alleged illegitimate practices, caused the citizens of this county considerable trouble and anxiety for the welfare of the young men and women of this community—so much so, in fact, that the roadhouse situation was discussed at the last meeting of our county board and the present practices severely condemned. At this meeting, I, as district attorney, was requested to employ such means as I might deem advisable to abate this so-called nuisance, and an appropriation was made to meet the expense of watching your operations. Further than this, I was elected by the people of this county to enforce the state laws within this county for the protection of its citizens, and this I propose to do to the best of my ability."

"We may as well understand each other from the start—for with that mutual understanding you may save yourselves considerable trouble, expense and possibly the infliction of a penalty at the hands of the court. I hereby notify you that we will employ every means available to inspect and familiarize ourselves with your operations, and for each violation of law, if any, you will be vigorously prosecuted to the end that the severest penalty possible for that particular violation may be imposed. There is no need of our having any trouble if you will only appreciate and come to a full realization that I mean just exactly what I say; that is, that if you will not or cannot operate legitimately, then you absolutely cannot operate at all."

"It is your duty and you are presumed to know the state laws by which your conduct must be governed—but for your benefit I desire to call your attention to a few of our laws pertaining to the sale of intoxicating liquors and a few of the laws contained in our criminal code:

Sale of Intoxicating Liquors.
"Section 1554. This section forbids the sale or giving away of intoxicating liquor to any posted man. The penalty for violation is $50 and costs or a jail sentence."

"Section 1557. Any keeper of any saloon, shop or place of any name whatsoever for the sale of liquors, to be drunk upon the premises, who shall sell or give away liquors or drinks in any quantity whatsoever to or with a minor, or to any person intoxicated or bordering on a state of intoxication, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

"Another section imposes a more severe penalty where the minor is

SUBMARINE BREAKS UNDERWATER MARK

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 11.—At 8 o'clock this morning the submarine boat Cager which descended into the water here yesterday in an endurance test, had been under the water twenty-seven hours, establishing a new world's record for time spent continuously under the water. The previous record, twenty-four hours, was set by the Octopus at Narragansett Pier in 1907.

Word from the Cager during the morning was that everything was in fine shape and that the commander expected the boat to stay down until 5 o'clock this afternoon, making the record thirty-six hours. The Cager is the invention of John M. Cager of Long Beach.

STREET CAR MEN ASK FOR RAISE

Union Committee Holds Conference with Manager Peter Valier on the Wage Question

CONTRACT TO EXPIRE JUNE 21

Likely to Arbitrate Unless Agreement Is Reached Before Next Week

An increase in wages of four cents an hour for every motorman and conductor employed by the La Crosse Street Railroad company has been demanded by the street car men's union, according to an announcement by union officials today. Daily conferences between the committee of five appointed by the men and Peter Valier, general manager of the street car company, have been held for several days past but up to the present no agreement has been reached. The contract, under which the men are employed at present, expires June 21. This contract provides a wage scale of nineteen cents an hour for the first six months of employment; twenty-one cents an hour for the second six months, and twenty-three cents an hour after the first year. The men have asked that the scale be increased four cents an hour all along the line, or that the new contract provides a wage scale of twenty-three cents an hour for the first six months; twenty-five cents the second six months, and twenty-seven thereafter.

It is said that the company has submitted a counter proposition providing a sliding scale, graduated to five years' service. This proposition is opposed by the men on the ground that the new men would be paying the salaries of those older in the service and that the company's payroll would be in reality decreased rather than increased as it would if the men in the aggregate were getting more pay than at present. They also claim that many of the men do not serve five years consecutively and thus would not be able to receive the benefit of the highest scale, though they had two or three years' experience.

Clement C. Smith of Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin Light, Power and Railroad company, which recently purchased the La Crosse City Railway company stock, attended a conference of the men when he was here Saturday. Mr. Smith gave the employees every assurance that the company is anxious to do its part in reaching a satisfactory agreement on the wage question.

According to a provision in the charter of the street car men's union it is obligatory on their part to submit to arbitration in the event they are unable to come to an agreement with the company themselves. It is believed that unless an agreement is reached within the next two weeks an arbitration board will be appointed to settle the point at issue.

The only question to be settled before the signing of the new contract is that of wages, the matter of hours and working conditions having been decided satisfactorily to all when the midnight car service was established here last year.

There are sixty-five men in the street car men's union and they average ten and a half hours work a day.

BODY HERE TOMORROW

The body of Edward Cutting, son of Conductor W. A. Cutting of the Dubuque division of the Milwaukee railroad, will arrive in the city tomorrow morning over the Milwaukee from Dubuque. It will be taken direct from the depot to the Oak Grove cemetery where the interment will take place. Rev. J. E. Watson will officiate.

OPINION UPHOLDS WATER POWER LAW

U. S. Supreme Court Decision Overturns Ruling of Wisconsin Supreme Bench

NO RIGHTS TO RIPARIAN OWNERS

Declare that Propertyholders on Banks Have No Title to Power in River

MADISON, Wis., June 11.—(Special.)—That a riparian owner has no private property as against the people in the flowing waters of a navigable stream is the opinion of the United States supreme court in a case just handed down. It has an important bearing upon the water power question which now confronts the state of Wisconsin. According to Senator Huston, who has examined both decisions carefully, the opinion of the United States supreme court appears to be materially at variance with the utterances of the Wisconsin supreme court when it declared the Wisconsin water power law of 1911 unconstitutional.

Upholds State Law

"The holding of the supreme court of the United States, in defining the rights of riparian owners in navigable streams, appears to be opposed to the holding of our supreme court in the water power cases," said Senator Huston. "The United States supreme court holds that the riparian owners on navigable streams have no private title to running water. The supreme court of Wisconsin held that the right to develop a water power upon a navigable stream was a private right resting in the riparian owner. The principle involved in the water power law of 1911, which was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court, seems to be sustained by this decision of the United States supreme court, and the decision seems to uphold the contentions made by those sponsoring the state's position in the water power law of 1911; viz. that the right to develop a water power upon a navigable stream was not an absolute or vested right but was contingent upon a grant of such right by the state."

The special senate committee on conservation and the legislative reference library are in receipt of copies of the decision, recently handed down by the supreme court. The plaintiff in this case was the Chandler-Dunbar company, of Michigan, who had made improvements in St. Mary's river under a permit from the war department of the United States and had expended many thousands of dollars in improvements. Subsequently, in 1909, congress revoked this permit.

Company Sues

The company brought suit for compensation.

The court's opinion said: "Ownership of a private stream, wholly upon the lands of an individual, is conceivable, but that the running water in a great navigable stream is capable of private ownership is inconceivable."

"Whatever substantive private property right exists in the flow of the stream must come from some rights which that company has to construct and maintain such works in the river, such as dams, walls, dykes, etc., essential to the utilization of the stream for commercial purposes."

FIFTEEN HURT IN RIOT

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 11.—Fifteen men were shot or otherwise wounded, five seriously, this morning, on the levee front in a riot when strikebreakers employed by the United Fruit company were attacked by 300 union men.

BOILER EXPLODES FOUR ARE KILLED

Stern of Coal Barge Blown Out and Flames Prevent Accurate Estimate of Dead

RACINE, Wis., June 11.—Four are known dead, including the chief engineer and two helpers, as a result of the explosion of a boiler on the coal barge E. M. Peck, here this morning. The stern of the barge was blown out and the cargo of coal is now burning. Bodies of more stevedores may be still in the hold. The captain of the boat declines to tell how many men were below when the explosion occurred, but twenty had just gone ashore while the barge prepared to move up the river to another coal dock. It had just finished landing coal at the Pugh docks when the accident occurred. The craft probably will sink. City firemen are now fighting the flames aboard. Four dead bodies and two injured men have been taken off.

HURLS FLOUR AT ASQUITH IN HOUSE

LONDON, June 11.—One of the wildest scenes that ever marked a session of the house of commons was enacted this afternoon when a male suffragette sympathizer from the visitors' gallery hurled a bag of flour at Premier Asquith on the floor.

The missile narrowly missed the premier, who was speaking at the time, and when it hit the floor the cloth burst and a cloud of flour spread over the ministerial benches, almost smothering the cabinet members who were there.

The man who threw the flour also showered suffragette pamphlets on the members sitting below, shouting incoherently and wildly about the death of Miss Emily Davison. He was finally subdued and arrested amid great excitement.

AUTO LEAVES ROAD CONNOR IS KILLED

Son of Former Lieutenant Governor Crushed when Machine Falls on Him

THROWN SIXTY FEET THROUGH AIR

Young Woman Companion Fatally Hurt in Accident at Fremont

FREMONT, Wis., June 11.—In a spectacular automobile accident Donald Connor, 24, son of former Lieutenant Governor William D. Connor of Marshfield, and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, was killed and Miss Nora Braun, 20, was perhaps fatally injured when the machine in which they were riding last night shot into the air at a sharp curve.

Going at a terrific rate of speed, the high-powered roadster leaped high into the air. Connor was thrown sixty feet into the air and the machine fell upon him. Miss Braun remained in the machine.

When picked up by two men, Connor whispered: "I am praying to God to help me." Then he died. The girl was rushed to the hospital but has small chance of recovery.

TAKE A PEEK INTO THE BIG BIG TENT

City Mission Gospel Meetings on Market Square Worthy the Attention of La Crosse Public

Keep away from the big tent on Market Square if you don't want the Gospel to get you.

Under the auspices of D. C. Dewey, superintendent of the City Mission, and Rev. F. L. Holden, evangelist of New York, Chicago and—just now—La Crosse, two weeks of preaching will be conducted there.

Everybody knows Superintendent Dewey, the humanity of whose Christianity has taken so strong a hold on La Crosse. Reverend Holden, too, will be well known here before his mission is ended, for he has that direct intimacy of appeal and convincing Christian logic which interest and lead the audience.

Special features for the meetings will be announced during the two weeks to ensue. Tomorrow night it is planned to have singing by young women of the congregation of the First Methodist church, and Rev. D. C. Jones, of the First Presbyterian church, has invited Mr. Dewey to hold the closing meeting of the revival in that church on Sunday evening, June 22.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., June 11.—Margaret Keller, aged 7, died last night from injuries received when her father was murdered by an axeman.

NOODLES FOR ALL ILLS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 11.—"Wouldst live long? Then wrap around thy fork the succulent, slippery macaroni. Wouldst be beautiful? Cleave to noodles."

This was the message sent to the world by the Wisconsin Association of Macaroni and Noodle manufacturers, in convention here. Delegates to the convention recommend noodles and macaroni for all the ills that human flesh is heir to—from the high cost of living to freckles. And they presented in support of their arguments statistics as long and drawn out as the tubular pastry they manufacture.

MERCHANT HOSTS OFF ON BLOWOUT

Big Steamer St. Paul with Fair Sized Crowd Engages in Organization's Annual Cruise Today

LOTS OF FUN IN FAIR WEATHER

City Notables Seen at the Levee Panned to Suit the Hilarity of This Most Festive Occasion

"Here's Charley Gesell—now let 'er go."

Paul Lutz, who said it, figured as the boat was overdue to leave the wharf it must have been waiting for the man who has never in his whole life missed participating in an enterprise for the civic good.

Well, Charley having arrived and ceremoniously purchased his ticket, the St. Paul's terrible siren shrieked its final warning, and the crowd—it was only a near-crowd—began to embark for the annual excursion of the R. M. P. A.

Scenes just before the big boat got under way were interesting. N. M. Scott, on the second deck, might have been aptly described as a Highland completely surrounded by women. It was a pretty piece of landscape, that Scott tableau, but the linen expert ungallantly ignored the women—it was an even break—and seemed intent upon watching for squalls where a speck on the horizon gradually grew into the Hilliputian figure of Frank Burgess.

Thurston Owens whispered that he was taking the boat in the hope that it would be swallowed by a carp, and thus end the marathon he started when he set out to escape the corrie of outdwellers who are pioneering the vicinity of Twentieth and Madison streets, otherwise known as The Gasless Half Acre.

John Utermoehl entered into hopeless competition with the steamer's siren when he attempted a short speech upon "The superiority of Hunkcase to Pickled Herring as a Breakfast Dish."

Bash Auburger, who takes 'em all in, was one of the first to mount the gang plank. Dr. J. M. Furstman arrived next, carrying an immense pack on his back. It leaked out shortly that it was a pack of cards, and immediately the "rummy" game started. M. F. Bauman was there, smiling and in good stroke, with his face and pockets full of cigars. Homer Hart and a baby in a go-cart wept copiously, the baby because it was scared by the wailing siren and John Utermoehl's speech, and Homer because he couldn't go.

And talk about your nifty little ticket sellers, that Joe Felber is all class. Some of the men in line complained because it took Joe twice as long to sell a ticket to a pretty woman as to a mere man, but the ladies didn't kick (even figuratively) and if the cash register fails to tally to-night the discriminating, and perhaps jealous, board of directors will understand why Mr. Felber couldn't keep his eyes on the change.

And who is this distinguished gentleman in the white suit, with hat and sox to match? He seems to be in high authority. The ladies all bow admiringly before his straight, trim figure, and everybody seeks his advice. When he so much as crooks his finger people hop about obediently, and John Utermoehl, who believes the authority of a secretary should never be questioned, looks on approvingly. Sure, he's a smiling, handsome dandy, audacious to the winning and courteous to the min. Who is he, sez ye? Why, that's Harry Taggart, secretary of the R. M. P. A. and of this and that other organization. They're off!

YEGGS ESCAPE AFTER A BATTLE

Blow Postoffice Safe at Weaver and Get Away in Skiff After Standing Off Villagers

WINONA, Minn., June 11.—The little village of Weaver across the line in Wabasha county, north of here on the Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, was the scene of a bold burglary shortly before 2 o'clock Tuesday morning when the postoffice and store of R. J. Montgomery was entered and a haul of close to $600 was made after the safe had been opened by the discharge of eight blasts which aroused many of the villagers.

A rescue party proceeding to the store was forced. These men opened fire upon the burglars, who had a guard out both in front and rear of the store while two men worked inside. The burglars returned the fire as they made their escape through the rear door, but none of the villagers was hit. The yeggs got away in a skiff.

112 TO 98 SCORE OF 16 INNING GAME

ROSSITER, Pa., June 11.—Experts today had only partially completed compiling the box score showing the result of the baseball game played between the teams of upper and lower Rossiter yesterday for the championship of the town, but were able to announce that the score was 112 to 98. The summary showed the following: 42 home runs, 53 triples, 73 doubles and 74 errors. Fifty-seven players participated in the game which went 16 innings and lasted five hours. Eight different umpires officiated, three being disabled.

The score stood 98 to 98 at the end of the fifteenth inning, but the lower Rossiter team rallied and got fourteen runs in the sixteenth.

INQUIRY DEVELOPS A STORY OF WAR

General in Charge of Martial Law District Tells of Paint Creek Strike

SOLONS SEE DANGER TO FREEDOM

Declare that Constitutional Guarantees Are at Stake in Probe of Absolutism

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(Staff Correspondent of the United Press.)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 11.—A story, eclipsing in dramatic intensity any ever suggested in the graphic fiction of the feud-ridden districts of Kentucky, or the mountains of the south, came today from the lips of the man who commanded the troops in the troubled Kanawha valley coal fields of West Virginia. It was a story of war. In terse sentences General Charles D. Elliott, state adjutant general, told of conditions which rivalled those of civil war times and read them into the record of the United States senate. The great powers of the national government are to be utilized to the fullest extent in curbing those responsible. Drastic legislation will result.

Freedom at Stake

This is a remarkable inquiry. The constitutional guarantee of freedom to every subject of the nation is at stake, according to the senators now here.

If the troops are to take the place of the courts and a military tribunal be superseded for trial by a jury of our peers, the next step may be the rule of the mob," is the way William Borah, senator from Idaho and the man responsible for the developments of today's portion of the inquiry, summed it all up.

Borah had read into the record the exact language of the West Virginia constitution, and, with this as a base, developed the story of that battle for supremacy between the mine owners of the state and the representatives of the United Mine Workers of North America.

Armed Like Troops

When his troops went into the troubled region, General Elliott said, they confiscated 120,000 rounds of ammunition and six machine guns, which had been taken there by the mine owners. They also confiscated thousands of rifles and large quantities of ammunition. And when the first period of martial law was over, Elliott said some of his own officers and men became mine guards and watchmen.

Elliott told of pitched battles between mine guards and miners, of towns shot up and property burned and destroyed. His report held both sides both equally to blame, he said, and while the militia had been fired on from ambush at times he did not know who did the shooting.

Martial law was originally proclaimed, he said, at the request of the union representatives because they declared the mine guards were carrying things in a high handed manner. It was opposed, he said, by the mine owners.

All of today's session was devoted to getting into the record the whole story of the military action in the strike.

AUTO HITS POLE

While driving an automobile at a medium rate of speed towards La Crescent last night about 9. Ernest J. Stein, and a companion, ran into a telephone pole, slightly damaging the machine. They escaped with minor injuries. Darkness caused the accident, Mr. Stein not seeing the pole. The two men were forced to return to La Crosse on foot.

CITY MAY HAVE A WATER BOARD FOR NEW PLANT

Commission Is Authorized by Bill Engrossed by the Assembly Yesterday

HOOD FIGHTS AGAINST MEASURE

Kneen Is For It and P. W. Mahoney Sends Petition Against Measure to the House

BILL THOUGHT SURE OF PASSING

Bill First Introduced in the Senate by Senator Otto Bossard

(By Joseph K. Kidder)

MADISON, Wis., June 11.—The city of La Crosse may appoint a commission to consist of three citizens, one alderman and the mayor, to direct the operation of its new $450,000 water system. This is provided for in senate bill No. 539 which was Tuesday morning ordered engrossed in the assembly.

The bill, which was introduced by Senator Otto Bossard, at the request of Mayor Ori J. Sorensen and other prominent and influential La Crosse citizens, met strenuous opposition from Assemblyman C. L. Hood and this opposition came to a climax when that gentleman burst upon the lower house with a half an hour's denunciation of the measure. His oratorical fireworks netted but few votes, however, the vote for engrossment standing fifty-seven for and seven against.

Kneen For Bill

Assemblyman E. J. Kneen, La Crosse county spoke and fought for the bill taking the stand that it was perfectly fair to give the city the right to run its utilities upon a strict business basis especially when the law does not make it compulsory. The law reads that the commission system MAY be adopted IF THE COUNCIL SO ELECTS, by a majority vote.

Engrossment is the big step in the passage of the measure and there is little or no doubt but that it will be enacted into law when it comes up for third reading.

The measure was not without opposition in La Crosse. Alderman Paul W. Mahoney circulating a petition and securing the signatures of twelve members of the council in protest.

Mr. Mahoney's chief objection to giving the city the right to determine how its plant should be run, according to the petition sent to Madison, seemed to be based on the claim that "the matter referred to is of great importance" and "that it has not been given any consideration whatever by the aldermen of the city of La Crosse."

Scents "Gum Shoe" Work

Mr. Mahoney, incidentally, took occasion to suggest in the petition that there might be "gum shoe" work in connection with the bill, maintaining

PAT CROWE WILL VISIT WASHINGTON

Intimates that He Will Hold Important Conference with Secretary Bryan

Pat Crowe, abductor of Edward Cudahy in Omaha in 1900, and once famous criminal, was released yesterday from the county jail, where he has been serving a thirty day sentence for the theft of a suit of clothes from the room of Robert Staley.

Crowe still wears his optimistic expression and is full to the brim with new "pipe dreams" and schemes for making money. He says that he is going to the capitol at Washington, but he said that his mission there was a secret. When questioned he said, "I do not like to make public my plans, but it is my intention to see W. J. Bryan in regard to plans for the betterment of politics in the country." Crowe names a fabulous sum that he says the secretary of state will give him when he learns of his plan.

That his precarious life is telling on him is evidenced by his personal appearance. His clothes are worn and ragged, and he has grown thin. The living that he has derived from his notoriety is almost exhausted, and he is considered by police throughout the country to be harmless. Crowe has a wife and two children in Chicago.

WINS CASE FOR FREEDOM OF PRESS

They are not going to send Colonel W. R. Nelson, publisher of the Kansas City Star, to jail for six months or any other term for contempt of a Kansas City court. The colonel, after a long fight, has just won his case, and officially learned that even a court must obey the law and its forms. His newspaper expressed its opinion of a judge there, and the judge, taking offense, sentenced him to a period in jail after a sort of a mock trial in the judge's home. But the high court, being composed of Missourians, had to be "shown."

Eight nations have indicated that they favor Mr. Bryan's peace plan. But the democratic party can't promise until after the convention of 1916.

Home Baking Reduces Cost of Living

THE U. S. Dept. of Agriculture in Experiment Station Bulletin No. 142 says that ten cents worth of wheat supplies almost three times as much protein and ten times as much energy as round steak, and with some other cuts the difference is even greater.

If then, one really desires to reduce her weekly meat and grocery bills, she need only make more use of her oven.

Who ever heard man, woman or child complain that good home-made biscuits, muffins, cake and cookies appeared on the table too often? Instead the tendency is "to make a meal of them" and the variety is so great that something you bake yourself could well be the chief feature of every meal.

Home Baking is Simplified by the Use of K C Baking Powder

With K C, you can make things moist and rich yet have them light and feathery, wholesome and digestible. Biscuits may be mixed the night before and baked fresh for breakfast. Muffins need not be dry and heavy. You can make a cake so light that you can hardly get it out of the pan whole, yet it will not fall.

K C is not like the old fashioned baking powders. It is double acting and continues to give off leavening gas until the dough is cooked through. K C is sold at a fair price—a large can for 25 cents. This would be no object if strength and purity were sacrificed, but every can is fully guaranteed under State and National Pure Food laws and to please. We take all the chances. Your money back if you do not get better results with K C than any baking powder you ever used.

the excitement, and before I am done with you," she paused ominously—"you shall have it."

"But—but—but—" "Not afraid of your own medicine, are you?" This, sneeringly.

"But your medicine isn't ours, missis. We wa'n't allowing to hurt your husband now. We just wanted to—"

"At the suggestion of your friends, you just wanted to kill him—I overheard your conversation, you know—and now I propose to—"

"What means all this strenuous talk, little woman?" Molly turned with a half start to find herself facing her husband. Her gun wavered not one inch from the discomfited three, who wisely continued to hold their hands in correct, perpendicular position.

"Why—why—," gasped the wife of the ranchman, "these desperadoes planned to murder you, and I overheard them, and I thought if I could talk to them awhile, I could convince them that they shouldn't."

Tom Wayne's humorous gray eyes appreciatively summed up the three frightened cowpunchers.

"Your reasoning seems to have been mighty effective," he allowed dryly. "I commend you on your sudden grasp of the situation, but I can't imagine that the boys intended—to—kill me. How is it laid?"

"We just figured on giving you a taste of Death," explained Tip Hotchkiss, wavy eyes on the lady, "but somehow we couldn't reason her out of it now. The joke is on us, and I allow, for the bunch, that if you let it drop right here you won't make any fewer friends by it." Tip grinned sheepishly around at his cronies, who wagged solemn heads in confirmation.

"I told you," half whispered the girl. "I told you, Tom—they want to kill you!"

Wayne reached down to gently take the huge revolver.

"Beat it, fellows," he growled, and then, as the crestfallen cowpunchers ambled away, "Little girl, you didn't take them?"

"You don't seem inclined to talk," again drawled the wife of the ranch owner, and then, more sharply, "Come, men, speak up, some of you, and show cause why I shouldn't shoot you down as you contemplated shooting my husband."

Molly was recovering her natural composure. After a moment, Tip Hotchkiss laughed in an embarrassed sort of a way.

"There wasn't no harm intended, ma'am," he maintained, shuffling heavy feet to punctuate the effort. "We were simply going to have some fun with him. Didn't mean no harm, nohow."

A grim little smile played about the corners of Molly's mouth. Suddenly she had realized that these men were afraid of her; that, in spite of her own feeling of helplessness, this outlaw band thought itself at her mercy. A resolute hand was needed. That was it, to be sure, a resolute hand, and a stout heart.

With a bravery she was far from feeling, the wife of the threatened rancher spoke:

"Your ideas of fun differ from the eastern customs, but inasmuch as the ethics of the occasion seem to demand murder, and as I hesitate to sacrifice my husband, I believe you three are listed for the sacrifice."

The square little jaw thrust itself forward. Molly Wayne had suddenly remembered that she had once won distinction as one of her home city's best amateur actresses. After all, this was only a part she was playing.

At the words of the woman, three faces blanched. The heavy mustache of Gleason seemed to droop even more despondently. The hands of Hotchkiss trembled like two grotesque leaves in the breeze.

"But—but, madam," chattered Detzel, between clinking teeth, "surely you wouldn't shoot us down in cold blood for just sort of planning a little practical joke. We was figuring—"

"And I promise to keep entirely to your ideas of amusement," snapped the lady, gun held steadily before her. "Hands up there!" This to Gleason, who showed symptoms of forgetfulness. "You boys crave a lit-

The Twins Looked, but Did Not Act, Alike.

"THERE," said daddy as he put the last words into his letter; "now I'm ready to talk to you children."

"But we don't want to talk," Jack and Evelyn answered. "It's a story we want."

"Marie and Margery were two nice little girls," daddy began. "They looked exactly alike. But when you got to know those two little girls you soon found out there was quite a difference between them."

"One summer Margery and Marie were asked to go to spend the summer in the country with friends of the family who lived on a farm."

"It was a lovely afternoon when they started. Mother kissed them goodby and was very particular to tell them they must be very good and polite and never make trouble for any one."

"When the train reached their station a big good natured boy was waiting to meet them with a pony cart."

"Jump right in," he said, "and we'll be home in jig time." Margery smiled at the boy, but Marie frowned.

"I'm hungry," Marie said. "I don't think I can wait any longer. Can't we have something to eat?"

"Margery blushed for her sister. The boy looked embarrassed. 'I'm awfully sorry,' he apologized, 'but there isn't any place around here where I could get you anything to eat.'"

"When they were driving home Marie complained about the mosquitoes. 'I don't think I'm going to like the country at all,' she said.

BRAKEMAN JUMPS TO AVOID DEATH

George Pape Turns Complete Somersault from Derailed Box Car Just in Time

George Pape, Milwaukee road brakeman, had a miraculous escape from death Tuesday night in the yards in Milwaukee. He turned a complete somersault in jumping from a freight car, that with five others, was wrecked. Pape is known among railroad men in this city.

The train was made up of eighty-five cars holding merchandise destined for Seattle, Wash. It was running through the yards at Florida and Clinton streets when a brakeman of one of the cars fell, derailing it. Five freight cars crashed into the derailed car and were demolished.

Pape was on the car just behind the one derailed and seeing the danger, jumped just in time to escape being ground to pieces.

SMALL PROFIT IN FREIGHT BUSINESS

C. W. Dickinson Calls Attention to Need of Better Boat Landing Accommodations

STEAMBOAT LINES ARE HAMPERED

Find Upper River Docks in Poor Condition or Else Obstructed by Launches

Calling attention to the need of piling for dock frontage which would prevent the hulls of steamers from scraping in the slip on the levee front, C. W. Dickinson, legal advisor of the La Crosse Plow company, today addressed a letter to The Tribune in which he opened an interesting question, the feasibility of shipping freight to and from La Crosse by river. He includes a letter from the Streckfus Steamboat line which declares that the steamboat companies find but small profit in soliciting freight business and have turned nearly their entire attention to passenger traffic. The Streckfus letter also discusses the necessity of better landing accommodations at Levee park.

Mr. Dickinson's letter and the accompanying communication from the steamboat line are given in full as follows:

"La Crosse, Wis., June 10, 1913.
Editor Tribune, City.

"Dear Sir: I hand you, herewith a letter from the Streckfus Steamboat line of St. Louis, Mo., touching freight business up the Mississippi river.

"About a year ago and when I was secretary of the Manufacturers and Jobbers' club, Tillman Bros. dropped me a line stating that the Diamond Jo line was refusing to take freight for them for La Crosse on account of the expensive handling of the freight across the new park. As my health would permit, some correspondence has passed between us since that time.

"My inquiry was as to what kind of facilities would be suitable at La Crosse to meet their own necessities as carriers. I wrote them again a few days ago asking if they were still refusing to carry any freight for La Crosse and this letter of June 7 is in response thereto.

Piling Desired
"It is to be noticed that at the present time all that would be desired would be piling for dock frontage that would prevent the hulls of boats from striking against the rip rap.

"At one time I took up the matter of improved facilities at the levee with the park commissioners to see how they would feel about putting railroad track and proper warehouses at the levee. Very properly in my judgment they promptly refused to consider any change of that kind. If improvements are to be made at all to adapt the river to traffic for La Crosse it must of necessity involve trackage owned by the city, proper warehouse facilities and proper derricks or hoists for handling freight between wharfs and the boats, meaning the expenditure of a good many thousand dollars for such improvements and the securing of a new location for a levee upon which such improvements can be located.

"The present location of the steamboat landing immediately above the bridge carries with it perpetual danger of the boats striking the piers of the bridge or the bridge itself in getting to or from the landing, especially so in times of strong winds and strong currents in the river.

Misuse to Safety
"I broached this matter one time to Captain Thompson and was not surprised to find that he had long considered the close proximity of the landing to the bridge to be a continual menace to the safety of the steamers.

"Considering the value of the improvements suggested above I might say that one large concern in the city informed me that if proper loading and unloading facilities were furnished by the city they would not hesitate to put in a very large coal yard for handling of fuel in a wholesale way for the western country.

"I am not desiring to enter into this subject largely at this time. It is one that will bear an immense lot of study.

"The explanation given above is for a proper understanding of the letter from the Streckfus Steamboat line.

"Yours truly,
"C. W. DICKINSON."

Davenport Builds Wharf
"St. Louis, June 7, 1913.
"The Streckfus Plow Co., La Crosse, Wis. Gentlemen: Acknowledging yours of the 4th, also yours of the 26th ult., to which we have not previously made reply because of wanting to investigate a little further in the matter of proper landing facilities, etc.

"Answering yours of the 4th, would explain that Davenport, Iowa, is putting in wharf facilities, which are going to be very complete and satisfactory, and which are not going to cost very much, especially when considered separately from the parking of the river front which has been done, very much as you now have it at La Crosse.

"The only thing we see necessary, which might be added to your present facilities, would be that of piling or dock frontage, which steamers could land against, instead of striking the rip rap bank with the hull of boats, as they now must do.

"Add to this proper warehouse facilities on railway siding, arranged so that passengers and vehicles can reach this warehouse, and you have all the river facilities needed, so far as we can see.

Face Many Difficulties
"Now about refusal to accept shipments and about freight in general on the Upper Mississippi. We believe it wise to put this thing frankly before you in just the light in which we see it at the present time, and that is, that the freight business on the Upper Mississippi is surrounded with so many difficulties, as to make it unprofitable to us. These difficulties embrace either poor landings, obstructed by launches or sloping banks, across which freight must be carried by hand, detaining steamer, as well as necessitating larger and more expensive deck crews for handling this freight. We as a rule also have to carry their freight across one or more railroad tracks and rights of way, and usually have to maintain a warehouse twelve months in the year in order that we may use it four.

"We find shippers on an even break will invariably ship by rail, and we find that money expended in freight solicitation is by no means productive of profit, as the same amount expended in soliciting passenger business, and for that reason, we, in self defense, are building up our organization and specializing the passenger department, because that seems to be our main prospect for future development.

"At the present time we are acting as rate regulators for the entire Mississippi river country, for the reason that we are the only people operating through steamers from St. Paul to St. Louis, and in this capacity alone, we are affording all the Upper Mississippi river shippers an enormous profit annually.

"This contingent on our part is borne out by the investment of over two million dollars, made two or three years ago, by Kansas City, Mo., in order to re-establish just what you, Upper Mississippi river shippers, already have, namely steamboat service and nothing else.

"The government is now following that up by supplying them with a river to run boats on, but the city supplied the money to finance the steamer line, which we know is supported by all the shippers along the Missouri river and especially by those controlling first, second and third class freight.

"The opposite is the rule on the Upper Mississippi river: Ninety per cent of the tonnage offered us runs below fourth class, and we have never yet found an instance in which tonnage was offered us at a rate equivalent to rail.

"The point has been raised by many people in the Upper Mississippi regarding these matters and most frequently we are confronted with an argument to the effect that our service is only for a short season and that we will not handle all the freight offered us.

Full Capacity not in Demand
"Our only answer to this can be that our boats have capacity for 1, 200 tons and it has been about 15 years since one of them was loaded.

"Our rates in the Upper Mississippi are 25 to 40 per cent lower than rail, and even at that our gross freight business on both the through boats last season totaled $5,600.

"We are making very little effort to get freight business because it is too expensive, and we believe we can carry along without it, if necessary, but we would be very glad to start through service steamers in March or April if the upper river shippers would get together and show us anything like substantial tonnage for early and late service.

"We operate, as far north as Burlington, Iowa, until ice closes the river in November, and handle very material and substantial tonnage, and we see no reason why this could not be possible in the upper river, but the short and freight facilities above Davenport are not comparable to those at Burlington, Fort Madison, Keokuk, Quincy, Hannibal and Louisiana. The facilities here at St. Louis are almost criminal, and is accounted for by the grip the Terminal Railroad association has on both sides of the river and probably will have for some time to come.

"Yours very truly,
(Signed) "F. MANNING,
"Traffic Manager."

HAVE CABARET WITH CARNIVAL

New Feature of High Class
Included in Wortham and Allen Shows

The usual hurdy gurdy features of the carnival of yore are entirely done away with under the Wortham and Allen banner. These shows are of a new kind and the Eagles assure their friends of the excellence of each of the separate shows.

Particular attention is called to the cabaret show carried by the organization. This entertainment is under the management of Joseph Callis, many years a producer of musical and operatic attractions. This season Mr. Callis has been prevailed to devote his efforts to a tented amusement with a view of trying out the experiment. To say that it was successful would be putting it very mildly. It was a riot. He has gathered in his cast some of the stars who formerly graced the legitimate stage and surrounded them with first class support and, as a result, has a meritorious offering for the public.

The principal of the huge cast is Chas. A. Farmer. Beatrice Overton plays opposite him with her usual daintiness and vivacity. The famous Plaza Theater chorus and the Eight Paris Belles are also features with the big show. Miss Beverly Dar-rington, of cabaret fame, is the added attraction. Among the other principals are Laurette Taylor, Bernice Hill, Helen Muldoon, Jonathan Fitch, Barry Larmore and Julian Mace. The orchestra is in charge of Jack Neville.

This entertainment carries out the original French conception of the cabaret entertainment. It is vastly different from the usual so-called cabaret and is a high class entertainment for everyone. Ladies and children are especially invited to make this their resting place after an afternoon on the midway. Polite ushers are in attendance. This, and other shows carried, are of the same high standard of excellence.

FOR THE NECK AND SHOULDERS

A Free Prescription That Instantly
Obliterates Blemishes, Tan, Freckles and the Marks Left by High Collars

The Dutch neck and the evening gown too often expose the discoloration and blemishes of high collars or the effects of tan and freckles. It is easy to overcome these conditions and make the neck beautiful and white and soft and smooth—to overcome, in other words, every blemish and make the low neck as attractive as it is comfortable. This preparation can also be used on the shoulders and face, and it is marvelously effective to beautify the hands and arms.

If you want to try it, go to your druggist and get a one ounce bottle of Kulux Compound. Pour the entire contents into a two ounce bottle, add quarter ounce witch hazel, then fill with water. Prepare this at your own home. One application will delight you. It is deliciously cool and soothing and it is not affected by perspiration. It will not rub off.

If you put it on one hand only, or on one side of the neck and note the difference, you will see the wonderful change it makes instantly. The results are immediate and continued use of this preparation will keep your skin as soft and smooth as a child's.

be one of the champions who will be expected to better his record.

The carnival will be one of the largest ever known and will bring together the greatest swimmers of the country.

MILITANT GIVES UP TO SAVE INNOCENT

DONCASTER, Eng., June 11.
Because an innocent woman was charged with the crime and in danger of conviction, Miss Lillian Lenton, the London "arsonette," today surrendered to the police and confessed that she set fire to the Westfield house here, which was burned with considerable loss several days ago. Miss Lenton was not suspected of the outrage and she had difficulty in persuading the police to take her confession seriously.

Before her surrender, Miss Lenton was a fugitive from justice.
She is wanted for trial at Old Bailey for burning the Kew Garden pavilion. Pending her hearing, Miss Lenton jumped her bond.

SHOOTS MAN WHO

Tells Detectives He Shot

DETROIT, Mich., June 11.—In a cell at police headquarters, Charley Newman, 27, formerly of Buffalo, N. Y., today gave three detectives a detailed story of the incidents which led up to his shooting late yesterday of Dr. Hugh Mulheron, in the physician's fashionable offices in the Fine Arts building.

Nervously running his hands through his hair, Newman retold a confession which he said his wife had made to him. The confession implicated the physician in an attack upon Newman's 19 year old girl wife who had been taking treatment from Dr. Mulheron.

SEEK SITE FOR MISSION HOUSE

Sheboygan County School
May Be Induced to Locate in La Crosse; Boys' School to Move

A strenuous endeavor to procure the location of the German Reform Mission House in La Crosse will be made by the board of trade committee on education as the result of a conference with officers and directors of the school at the La Crosse club yesterday. The school which enrolls 140 students and a faculty of ten, in spite of the fact that it is located a considerable distance in the country from Sheboygan, has received an offer of $25,000 from the city of Sheboygan with which to purchase a site and buildings. It is the hope of the La Crosse committee that a better site for the school can be procured in La Crosse.

It is the belief of the committee and directors of the school that a much larger enrollment would result if the school were moved into a city the size of La Crosse. A twenty-five acre site located in the southern part of the city is being contemplated by the committee and it is likely that other inducements will be offered the school to come here.

The committee was very favorably impressed with the possibilities of the school as outlined in the conference yesterday. The directors came here at the request of several local business men.

The communication from the Keewatin Boys' school announcing that they are contemplating moving from Spencer, Wis., was presented to the committee by Secretary J. L. Utermoehl. The directors of the Keewatin school will be invited to visit La Crosse so as to get a line on the inducements to be offered by this city. The Keewatin school enrolls at present about fifty boy students.

The meetings have been harmonious in the extreme, the representatives of the strikers and the employers presenting their arguments as though in a lawsuit. When all of the evidence and testimony is in the possession of the board the arbitrators will prepare the contract for the ratification of the coopers and their employers.

COUNTY ATTORNEY
SENDS WARNING TO
THE ROAD HOUSES

under 17 years of age, and for all violations the owner or principal is held equally liable with the agent or employee doing the act.

"Section 1557a. Any keeper of any saloon, shop or place of any name whatsoever for the sale of liquors to be drunk on the premises who shall permit or allow any girl or young woman, under the age of 17 years to be present at or participate in any ball or dance held in such saloon or in an adjoining building or who shall permit or allow any such girl or young woman to linger in or frequent such saloon shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100, or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

Sec. 1557n. "Every keeper of any saloon, shop or place of any nature or character whatsoever for the sale of intoxicating liquors, who shall either directly or indirectly suffer or permit any person of either sex under the age of 21 years to linger or loiter in or about any bar-room or other room on such premises in which intoxicating liquor is sold or dispensed, shall for every such offense be liable to a penalty not exceeding $50, besides costs, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding 60 days."

Sec. 1553. "All places of whatever description in which intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of law shall be held and are declared public nuisance and shall, upon the conviction of the keeper thereof, be shut up and abated." The law also provides for the forfeiture of the license in case a party is convicted of the violation of any of the state laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors.

Second Offense Penalty Severe.—Another statute termed the second offense law, implies a much more severe penalty in cases where the accused has heretofore been convicted of or pleaded guilty to the commission of any offense or misdemeanor.

Under our criminal code I quote you a few of the laws which I desire to call your attention to:

Sec. 4581c. "Any person who shall entice, abduct, induce, decoy, hire, engage, employ or take in any manner any female from her home or from any other place where she may be for the purpose of prostitution or for unlawful sexual intercourse, and any person who shall knowingly or intentionally aid, abet, assist, advise or encourage the doing of any such act for the purpose aforesaid, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison not more than five years nor less than one year."

Sec. 4581e. "Any person, being the owner, lessee or occupant of any premises, or having in whole or in part, the management or control thereof, who induces or knowingly permits any female under 21 years of age to resort to or be in or upon such premises for the purpose of prostitution or unlawful sexual intercourse, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison not more than five years nor less than one year."

Sec. 4581f. "Any person who shall keep a house of ill-fame, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness, or who shall set up or keep a common bawdyhouse or brothel shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison not more than three years nor less than one year, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year nor less than 6 months, and when imprisoned in the county jail by a fine not exceeding $500 nor less than $200. Any person who shall resort to, frequent or become an inmate of any house of ill-fame, common bawdyhouse or brothel shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding ninety days or by a fine of not more than $100 nor less than $10, or by both fine and imprisonment."

To Seek Prison Sentences.—If there are at the present time any women stopping at your place other than those used necessarily in and for your domestic work, it will be necessary for them to seek other quarters.

If this notice is not sufficient, and it becomes necessary to prosecute, then it is equally clear that a fine will not produce the desired result and I will therefore bend my energies to procure in each instance a prison sentence.

In closing I wish to emphasize

ON NEW U. S. NOTES

Ellen Evelyn James, a Texas girl, has become a goddess—the Goddess of Plenty—and as such her face will ornament new bills to be issued by the United States government. Kenyon Cox, the artist, to whom was given the work of designing the bill, had many candidates for the Goddess of Plenty, but he chose the little Texas girl. Miss James is an artist herself, being a student of sculpture in the Students' Art League of New York city.

to you the fact that these laws as well as all other laws of this state must be respected and obeyed by you; and if you will permit yourselves to be convinced of that fact, we will have a very peaceful administration so far as the road-houses are concerned. The matter rests entirely in your hands and I sincerely trust that we may have peace.

If "a word to the wise is sufficient," this voluminous notice should certainly be sufficient to keep you out of trouble.

CITY MAY HAVE A WATER BOARD
FOR NEW PLANT

ing in the petition that "it seems as though every effort has been used thus far to keep all knowledge of the pendency of this measure from the common council of the city of La Crosse."

The new law, which will give to La Crosse the right to appoint commissions is merely the same as now applies to cities of the fourth class.

Exponents of the measure maintain that with an investment of several hundred thousands of dollars, as in the water system, the management of a utility so immense should be placed in the hands of men of recognized business acumen.

It is section 925-95 of the statutes that gives to cities the right to appoint a commission to operate its public utilities and that section reads:

"In cities which own a lighting plant or waterworks, or both, such lighting planting or waterworks, or both, may be operated under the direction of the board of public works or by a commission, to be determined by ordinance of the common council, to consist of the mayor, three citizens and one alderman to be appointed by the mayor."

How the citizen members of the commission are to be selected is provided for in section 925-95a of the statutes and the system is as follows:

"The common council of any city which shall have determined to have a commission as provided in the foregoing section, shall at the first regular meeting of the council thereafter, elect by ballot, by a majority, three citizens whose terms of office shall expire on the first Tuesday of October, one in the year of his election, one in the year following his election, and one in the second year following the year of his election, and thereafter, at the expiration of the term of each commissioner, one shall be elected by the council each year on the first Tuesday of October for a term of three years and until his successor is elected and qualified."

Section 925-95b provides that in cities of the fourth class where the commission plan has been decided upon, all accounts and, in fact, all details of the operation of the plant, shall be attended to by the commission, thus taking it out of the hands of the board of public works or other department that it may before have been operated under. It was this section that was amended by the bill introduced by Senator Bosshard so that the law shall also apply to cities of the third class.

Members of the La Crosse common council, who signed the petition circulated by Alderman Paul W. Mahoney, protesting against the passage of the bill, were Messrs. B. C. Smith, H. J. Roth, Paul Mahoney, Joseph C. Houska, Edward Neuman, George N. Bedessen, W. P. Roellig, Adam Kromer, John F. Downs, John Schneberger, Jr., Joseph F. Bartl, and William Collins.

The bill thus far has never been presented to a committee of the legislature as we understand for discussion and no opportunity has been given to the common council or its members from this or any other city to consider the matter and we would, therefore, petition your honorable body to defer action on this matter until the opportunity has been given to cities affected to consider the matter and especially the city of La Crosse."

NORMAL GRADUATES TO GET $50,000

Earning Power of Teachers Increased More Than 70 Per Cent by Course in La Crosse School

MANY SENIORS GET POSITIONS

Big Demand for Services of Students Who Finish Here This Year

The value of a normal school training for prospective teachers is always emphasized when the class statistics are compiled showing the salaries "before and after" taking the course laid out by the state superintendent of public instruction. The combined salaries which the graduates of this year will receive amounts to practically fifty thousand dollars distributed among about sixty people. The list, which Prof. W. H. Sanders of the training school has given out for publication, is not the final one as seniors are daily being considered for positions.

It is worthy of notice that the possession of the normal certificate has raised the earning power of the men and women as high as seventy and eighty per cent. Where the person had previously taught in a rural school at a salary of thirty to forty-five dollars next year he will draw a monthly check of sixty to one hundred dollars for a month's service. The list which follows includes only those who will complete the two year and four year teacher's courses.

When a suffragette in London wishes to smash a window while on a shopping tour, she places her little hammer within her "Dorothy Bag" and sails forth. No policeman would stop her to feel the bag, for if he did he might have to stop thousands of women on London streets.

FARMER COUGHS UP LIVE BROOK TROUT

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., June 11.—Paul Nickels, a Sodus town-ship farmer, has turned out to be a human aquarium. For several days he has been coughing small size brook trout from two to five inches in length.

For weeks Nickels has been suffering from stomach complaints which baffled physicians and threat-ened his life. A day or so ago he had a violent coughing spell and coughed up a four inch fish. Several other coughing spells have fol-lowed and each time the farmer has vomited fish.

Attending physicians explain the phenomenon by declaring that Nick-els often drank from a small brook on his farm and probably swallowed some tiny minnows which lived and grew in his stomach. He is rapidly recovering.

It is surprising that there exists much skepticism as to the possibility of a person recovering from severe Lung Trouble when there are so many reports of complete recoveries brought about through the use of Eckman's Alternative. This is a remedy for the throat and lungs, which should be investigated by every sufferer. Read of this case:

1619 Susquehanna Ave., Phila., Pa.
"My Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, and in February of 1902 I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. It was at this time, March, 1902, that I started taking Eckman's Alternative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced well. Since that time I have had two slight attacks of pneu-monia, and I have resorted to no other medicine to effect a recovery. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done."

AND EASY TO MAKE

EMBROIDERY IS

EXTENSIVELY
ON GIRLS FROCKS

MAY is always the children's month. So much of it has been discouraging this year, but the bright days will come and the May parties will be held and there is a certain atmosphere of pleasure in the air that makes the little folk very happy and brings with it some necessary consideration on the part of their elders as to fitting raiment.

It has almost become trite to say that the present is a season of many opportunities, yet any consideration of little girls' garments brings the fact so strongly before the mind that it seems impossible not to reiterate. All the familiar fabrics, the lawns, the dimities, the ginghams, the batistes, are more than commonly beautiful. Colors grow more various and more interesting with every season. In a general way, it may be said that the best styles call for simple effects for the younger folk, but that simplicity is obtained in many ways and there are combinations of colors and of materials to be noticed that are beautiful in the extreme, while they unquestionably savor of the unusual.

We have been wont to think that black was somewhat somber for children's garments but black as trimming is being used this summer to produce the smartest possible effects and rather to enhance than to detract from the color effect. Buff, the rose shades and light blue are extremely fashionable and one or the other can be worn by almost every girl. With a black patent leather belt and, perhaps, a little embroidery in black thread, a dress from such colors becomes distinctive at once and this treatment is to be noted upon the best models this season has brought forth.

Again color is to be used much with white and some of the prettiest, most attractive possible frocks can be made from white with blue or white with rose color or white with pale green if the two colors are judiciously handled and advantage taken of the best styles.

Tunic dresses and belted dresses are very fashionable. The tunic dresses are especially well adapted to materials of two colors and lovely little dresses are made with plaited skirts of plain white linen and tunic of colored linen eyelet-embroidered and trimmed with white banding, while the same combination can be used in many ways, the idea applied to dresses of various sorts. In a general way, linen and soft finished pique may be said to be the favorite materials for the belted dresses of the heavier sort, gingham and chambray for the sturdy ones for harder usage, but summer in this country means so many possibilities of climate that the children need the thinnest, lightest, filmiest frocks as well as those that are heavy enough for the cooler days. For dressy occasions, voile is a favorite and marquisette is lovely, but nothing ever takes the place of handkerchief linen, mercerized batiste, embroidered Swiss muslin and other dainty, thin materials that can be laundered and laundered without injury.

Both lace and embroidery are used for trimming for all materials, the kind of lace being determined by the weight of the fabric and the use to which the dress is to be put, but nothing is quite so pretty, nothing gives quite such a touch of elegance as hand embroidery. Even the least little bit gives the daintiest effect. Whether the dress is plain for morning wear or the thin dainty sort for parties and occasions of the kind, a little hand embroidery will enhance its value.

Scallops make a very notable feature of prevailing fashions, both for the younger folk and for the grown-ups, and scalloped edges are always pretty on children's dresses. Simple as the treatment is, it affords opportunity for color effects that makes it especially worthy of consideration just now.

Little girls, whose mothers are the smartest and best dressed and consequently, are the most particular about their children's garments, wear very simple little frocks of linen, chambray and materials of the kind for every day occasions. Many of these are made with plaited skirts and blouses that are joined by a belt and others again, are cut with body and skirt in one, but whichever form is chosen, scallops make the favorite finish and some of the most distinctive frocks to be seen are made of buff, blue or pink linen after one of these models with the neck and sleeve edges scalloped with black and they are worn with black patent leather belts. There is very little labor involved in such treatment but the effect is an excellent one. Rather heavy mercerized thread is used for the purpose and it fills up rapidly while it makes an excellent effect. If black is not liked on the color, white may be used and the belt made of the material of the dress either scalloped or piped with white; but black on color makes a somewhat important feature of the season and consequently, is of especial interest.

Kimono sleeves, sleeves that are known as "set in" and that are really much like the kimono sleeve in shape but are sewed to the arm-holes, and sleeves that are slightly full at the arm-hole are all correct and have equal vogue. The kimono sleeves are always pretty and graceful while every mother knows how largely they reduce the labor of making a frock. If gussets are inserted under the arms, there is no lack of strength and the sleeves unquestionable are smart and are being used by the best designers and makers, but the feature of variety is nowhere more noteworthy than in this question of sleeves, so that each mother is free to choose the style that seems best adapted to her own little girl. The one rule that may fairly be said to be universal calls for round neck and short sleeves although even this must be modified, for there are dresses designed for cool days that are made with shields, high collar and sleeves that extend to the wrists.

For the May festivities which always seem to belong to the month and which, it is to be hoped, will be enjoyed under sunny skies in spite of present conditions, dainty little frocks of lovely white fabrics are being shown and bordered materials are being much used. These are to be found in fabrics of all weights from the filmiest marisettes to linens, and they make the most attractive little dresses with a very small amount of labor. The quaintness that is apparent in all fashions is especially charming applied to children's dresses, and very lovely little frocks for the garden party and occasions of the kind are made of embroidered voile with the raised waist line that is always pretty for the little folk, and the fichu blouse with lace frills that are a real delight. As a matter of course, sashes are worn with all such frocks but the sashes are bowed and knotted in so many ways that they, again, give evidence of the wide variety of the season supplies. They are bowed at the back and they are bowed at the left side and sometimes the bows are big with up-standing loops and sometimes the sashes are finished with rosettes and simple knots. The laces used are preferably Valenciennes and Baby Irish for they belong to the children by natural right. Many of the German Valenciennes so closely resemble the genuine lace that it is difficult to discover the difference at a glance. These are especially charming upon batistes, linens and materials of the kind, while the Irish lace makes a peculiarly good effect upon voiles and marisettes. Cluny is somewhat used but it gives a more mature effect and the one law that must not be broken calls for a generally childish effect and the simplicity that is so charmingly attractive.

For wear beneath the dainty, filmy frocks, the prettiest little slips of fine lawn are used; but the active girl who really likes to enjoy the summer to the full, wears bloomers to match the morning dress and so dispenses with petticoats and all their incumbrance. The bloomers mean perfect protection and perfect freedom and there never was a fashion designed more heartily welcomed, unless it may be the introduction of rompers that are the light of the little folk and relief to the mother's soul. This year, rompers are made of all the simple, sturdy materials with which we are familiar, but the touch of hand work often appears there as it does on the costumes of the more elaborate sort, and very charming rompers for the little folk are made of chambray with the neck and sleeve edges scalloped by hand. Long and short sleeves both appear on these garments and they are as pretty as can be, while they leave no doubt as to their practical advantage. Whatever else the little child's wardrobe may lack, rompers must be there, if the edict of Fashion has been heard, for fashion and comfort go hand in hand in matters of this sort. In the morning hours, children dress plainly in sturdy material with nothing to hamper their free movement necessary.

Later they wear dainty frocks that are fine of material, beautiful of line and charming in effect but made very simply with that little trimming and that judiciously applied.

Among the novelties of the season must be mentioned, however, frocks that are made with the tunics closing at the shoulder and these tunics can be treated in so many different ways that of themselves, they mean variety. The style is liked both for thin and heavy materials. Charming little dresses of this style for simple afternoon occasions are made of linen which is such a pronounced favorite while for the same model, are used gingham and the like for morning wear. White eyelet embroidery for the tunic and batiste for the main part of the frock make a very dainty little dress, while a garment made of checked gingham combined with plain, is adapted to the morning hours.

Dame Fashion has been generous in many ways this season but, apparently, the children have been especially home in mind for their dresses are charming. They make pictures of the little wearers yet they are simple in the extreme, eminently charming in effect and they leave their owners free to enjoy the summer holidays to the fullest extent. Nothing that is fussy, nothing that is hampering is good style.

With the frocks of the morning, brown hose and shoes are the usual ones but for afternoon occasions, white is preferred, and ribbed stockings with buckskin shoes, low or high, as taste or occasion may require, make a smart accompaniment for the frock of the more dressy kind. Parties and similar occasions of the kind will, of course, demand thinner and lighter stockings and ties, but summer represents outdoor life and buck skin is the best material while high shoes are quite as smart as the low ones and they have certain practical advantages that every mother will be quick to recognize.

Pretty Features of the Prevailing Styles

PREVAILING styles present so many pretty and attractive features that they really become fascinating. For the summer we will wear all sorts of lovely fabrics made into gowns that often are given a touch of quaintness by trimming or treatment that is extremely alluring. Such quaintness not unfrequently is suggestive of the older time and of family portraits but it is new to this generation and it represents the very latest idea in fashions. Taffeta always seems to call for pretty self trimmings and pinked out edges for the ruffles and little frills which are used thereon. Black velvet ribbon, too, belongs to it by natural selection. It is used most effectively both as trimming to be sewed onto the gown itself and for sashes as a finish for the waist line. A great many changeable, or two tone effects, are worn but the plain colors have by no means been superseded.

One of the most distinctive and attractive taffeta gowns that could be imagined is made of the silk in a greenish grey shade, known as tea color, and is trimmed with little box plaited quillings not more than 1½ inches in width that are finished with sawtooth edges and combined with these ruches are bands of black velvet ribbon, while wider ribbon makes a sash with long ends. It seems hardly necessary to add that there is a chemisette and that there are under sleeves of dainty shadow net for one can hardly imagine a taffeta of this kind without just such a finish.

Lace of all kinds is to be lavishly used. One of the prettiest finishes for a tailored suit of taffeta is lace laid flat over the collar and drawn together at the edges of the front. Lace frills are used in three-quarter coat sleeves, also, and lace and embroidered muslin fichus will completely transform any plain gown. They are both exceedingly fashionable and one can hardly do better than provide a number. They are being found in varying shades and styles and they have a very practical value at the same time that they are dainty and smart in the extreme. What we once would have called old-fashioned looking, is extremely new fashioned to-day although, to be sure, we retain straight narrow lines, whereas the gowns to which we are looking for suggestion were voluminously full. If there are any bits of old lace laid away by all means look them up for there is no kind of lace that is not in fashion and the older sorts are the most treasured. Lace is used as frills and as flounces in bandings and for collars, cuffs and all the little accessories of dress. For the silks and the thinner materials lace of the latest most filmy sorts is fashionable but linen costumes and heavier materials are being trimmed with laces that are suited to their needs. Cluny, Irish Crochet, Macrame and all the heavy laces are being much used and there is also a new lace known as Ratine that suggests the material which has been so eagerly welcomed, for it includes little insets that give just the Turkish toweling suggestion, while the main portions are sufficiently open to deserve the name of lace and to make a very beautiful effect.

Handsome suits of taffeta are trimmed and treated in a great many different ways but embroidery with beads is exceedingly beautiful and especially worthy of note. The beads are applied over a stamped design such as would be used for braid and they make a very rich effect. Irresistible blue glass beads on a dark blue taffeta are exceedingly handsome. Jet on old blue is most distinctive.

All possible variations of the draped skirt and the panier idea are appearing. But no matter how a costume is made, no matter what its distinguishing feature, the close, narrow lines remain. In fact, it is astonishing to note in how many ways an effect of drapery and of fullness is obtained, while fundamentally, there is no increase of width.

Pacquin advocates skirts of white taffeta with coats of black satin, faille and the like, finished with white collars; and simpler suits show skirts of white serge with coats of black. Black and white taffeta is combined in many costumes.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, June 11.—The local wheat traders found themselves oversold today as the result of yesterday's break in prices and the shorts started out to recoup. The offerings were light and consequently prices rushed upward 1-2 c to 5-8c, at the outset and made further advance of 1-4c during the morning session. The advance occurred in spite of bearish foreign cables.

Reduced offerings in the corn pit caused a bulge shortly after the opening that sent July up 3-8c and September up 3-8c. Those advances were maintained for the balance of the morning session.

Oats started easier but responded quickly to the higher prices in wheat and corn and recovered and then advanced fractionally. A moderate

DOERFLINGER'S

You can't expect them to win all the time, so the Yankees dropped one to the White Sox. Scott helped his own game along with a home run. Zimmer lined out a double and two singles in the Giant-Cub struggle out of four times up. Lobert contributed a double and triple for the Phillies and Luderus cracked out a home run.

Watching The Scoreboard

The Phillies increased their lead over the Giants by coming from behind in the ninth inning and nosing out the Reds, while the Cubs duplicated their ten inning victory over McGraw's men Sunday.

The Athletics made it fifteen straight. Strunk fattened up with two triples and Collins and Baker had one each.

If there is any argument as to what constitutes a day's work Konetchy's part in the St. Louis-Boston game might be considered. Out of six times at bat he got two singles, a home run and a triple, scored four runs, made two assists, thirteen put-outs and didn't make an error.

Incidentally, it took the Cardinals and Braves three hours to play their game, the Cardinals using seventeen men and the Braves fifteen.

It was Walter Johnson's day against Detroit and he allowed but two hits and fanned seven men. Only one Tiger player reached third. Washington got one hit during the game, scoring their three runs on two passes and a triple by Gandil.

NO SNAP FOR U. S. IN POLO MATCHES

Win First Game 5½ to 3 by Rushing Britons Off Their Feet at the Start

NEW YORK, June 11.—Although backers of the American "Big Four" which defeated the English polo team in the first match for the international cup yesterday, took on fresh hope today that the Americans would be returned the winners in the final games, the result of the first clash did not bring any feeling of supreme confidence. Monte Waterbury of the United States four suffered two broken fingers.

The Americans won by a score of 5½ to 3 in one of the fastest and most spectacular games that ever marked an international contest. It was the dashing start of the Americans that really carried them to victory. The Waterburys rode like fiends. Within less than two minutes after play was started Monte Waterbury scored the first goal and after play was resumed Larry Waterbury scored another one in somewhat less than three minutes. Milburn added a third goal before the period closed.

England scored for the first time in the second period when Captain Cheape shot the ball between the posts and though the Americans continued their hammering at the English defense one goal in the second, third, fourth and eighth periods was all that resulted. It was enough, but after being overwhelmed right at the start, the Englishmen showed their ability to rally and put up a better defense. The English started deliberately and were simply swept off their feet by the American team's opening rush, but as the game progressed met their opponents dash for dash, and the seventh period was marked by the fastest riding of the entire match.

PRACTICE STEADILY FOR CREW RACES

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 11.—Another day of strenuous practice, with morning and afternoon workouts was scheduled for the crews of Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin today. Coach Cornbear of Washington continues to follow his plan of one practice period daily and the far western eight will take to the water only between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon. The Washington crew is rapidly becoming more accustomed to conditions on the Hudson and their work showed marked improvement yesterday.

Cornell and Columbia took spins over the full four mile course yesterday and as the same favorable weather prevails today, other of the crews are expected to travel the Derby distance.

A thorough examination of the shells of the Columbia and Wisconsin fours today revealed that neither suffered any serious damage from a collision during the practice yesterday. The shells met head-on, but outside of a broken oar no damage was done.

LA FARGE DEFEATS READSTOWN

Readstown lost to the combined teams of Viola and La Farge in a loosely played game, 14 to 11. The score stood 10 to 3 in favor of Readstown in the seventh inning but batting rallies by the visitors at the right time sent the game into the tenth inning a tie.

Pitcher Sloggy made the sensational play of the day when, in the ninth with two men out he stole from first to third and then took a long chance for home and succeeded in scoring and tying the count, but sank with exhaustion on reaching home plate.

DIVORCES POLO PLAYER

PORTLAND, Me., June 11.—While Lawrence Waterbury, No. 1 on the American polo team in the international matches, was riding hard from one end of the field to the other to register his goals against the Englishmen, Mrs. Waterbury scored on her husband here. After a secret hearing before Justice Haley, Mrs. Waterbury was granted a divorce on grounds of "cruel and abusive treatment." She was also given the custody of the two children, Lawrence, Jr., 12, and Alma, 10.
